Would you like:

- To envision all the generations in our society living and working together in harmony?
- To see each generation embrace shared values and virtues like honesty, integrity, and humility?
- Each generation to develop the self-awareness necessary to demonstrate empathy and understanding for others?

Designed with these goals in mind, this educational workshop will:

- Define what it means to have character and why it is important in today's society
- Look closely at differences between how the four generations see and feel about the world, living and working together right now
- Identify the core virtues that are crucial for human beings to practice and pass on to future generations
- Teach you about The Humility Code, a way of looking at your life with a set of morals, values and beliefs that are core to being a virtuous human being and hold the key to your future success

The time to focus on the future of family, community, country and the planet is now!

Let us work together to build a legacy of character for future generations today.
